Cooper Writes a Letter to Hill.

DENVER, Earch 8.—Governor Cooper Li his evening:

To Hon. N. P. Hill, Proprietor of the Denver Republican:

MY DEAR SIR-In spite of the strong re uctance Lave to enter into a newspaper controversy, the good name of the state seems to me to demand that not ce be taken of your recent course in bubisking reckless and wanton statements in regard to members of the state board of land commissioners, including myself.

for all is utterances, yet when by coninued reiteration such utterances assume the character o' a bolicy, it is entirely fair o in er that you have facen cognizance of and personally approved of its line of action and are therefore morally responsible. The close personal supervision you are known to give to the conduct of your paper forbids the supposition that utterances assuming the important character of a policy could gain admittance to its columns through negligence, inciderence or any lack of persona, attention from you. You are therefore justly chargeable with full moral responsibility of all the base false looks and insinuations which your paper has uttered within the last two weeks in regard to the recent sale of state ands. You have stated and insinuated as fol-

Lo not approach a discussion of these. charges in the irritated temper of a man suffering from a personal wrong. I am not especially sensitive to personal criticism and . freely admit the right of the press to utter any expression of opin on on the actual 'acts of my official conduct. But when you charge the chief offcer of the state, the servant to whom the people have confided their highest public trust, with faiselook and briffery or tracing public property for his own bolitical advantage, you place me in a position where a proper regard, for the reputation of the state and the serious camage von are coing it combels me as a minic onty to call a halt upon the outrage.

Your arge financial responsibility, your no itical position in the state and the amica) e relations which are known to have existed between you and myse f, would give a certain color of likelihood to any charge, however infamous, which your paper may choose to make against my official integrity. All considerations of mere persona injury, , waive with only the assertion that one and all the charges o which I have a unecare atterly also, false in their assertions, insinuations and references against the clear and absolute rectitude of my conduct in connection with the transaction in question, fa'se in who'e and false in cetal; and the slightest investigation waica common prucence and deeent fairness could have suggested, would have proved them so. Lam not so consumed with political ambition as to barter my bonor, and betray my oficial path to serve the people in this state faithfully for the uncertain bribe of any political influence on earth. The application for the sale of talk land was made in the usual manner. No request was made by me in any manner or form whatever, to any member of the poard to savor the sale of this and. The board were a nanimous in approving of the sale. No word was said by me as to where or now the advertisement should be made, nor did I know until after state sa'e in what paper it was advertised. The records of the register's office and that of the state treasurer both show that the Whill ordicertificate was signed on Wednesday, February 19th, in exact accordance with my statement. The Baker certificate was presented on Caursday, February 20th and was not signed and is still unsigned.

These fac's could have been veribed at any time. The records have been accessib e every day since you entered upon this course of infamous scanca, agains: my ofcial integrity, and you have neit ier been to see me yourself nor sent any responsible member of your corps. Nothing less than a power'ut motive cou c have induced a man of your responsipility to enter upon a course so cleastrons to the moral cignity of the state as to charge the chief magistrate with falsehood and crime without rea-

There were two elections last week in England. In one the tory majority of 261 was turned into a home rule majormen: '

The public letter of Governor Cooper to Senator Lit was in every way an unfortunate mistake. It was hardly paying proper regard to the dignity of the office to accress tals bublic letter to a private individua. If the purpose had been to secure an explanation from Senator Eill, the only proper course was to have accressed a private and personal letter. practica y an official document to a Due statement given on the first of March was in every way a better one and convinced the people of the state of cressed very properly to his fellow offcia's and this should have ended the vestigation. The commandery n chief, the Pennsy vania commandery and delegations from all the other communicaties will take part in this celebration and it will probably be a notable one. Apri. 15th, as every school boy and girl knows, is one of the. sacciest anniversaries in the American calendar. The assassination of President Lincoln on that day, twenty five years ago, and the gloomy and ominous clouds which attended the event, seeming to threaten the | very foundation of the union which thousands of laves had been sacrificed to save at the very moment when trium of had seemed close at hand, led to the organization of the Loyal Legion on the same day in Paradelpais for ourposes which the name indicates. Since then it has spread throughout the union and there are now seventeen command eries, each representing a state, except one which represents the District of Columbia Commissioned officers of the army, pavy and marine corps who served in the civil war are eligible for membership. Membership descends to. the elest cirect male ineal descendant according to the rules of primogeniture. There are at present 6064 members in the organization. Three of these are in this city. Captain S'as Casey of the navy and Colonel De La Vergue and Major Otis Remick of the volunteer service during the rebellion.

The old acies, who, in their youthful days rubbed and pounded and generally now, the clothes were twisted and rubbed and poiled and wrung until every fore was strained and every button bad either weakened or lost its hold on the garment. At this mode establishment a piece of Valenciennes lace could pass through every process of washing in company with a collar or shirt and come out uninjured. The washing is accomplished by forcing clean warm sucs through and throngh the cothes until the cirt is disso ved and carried away. The clothes are not wrung but are placed in a centrifugal crier which is revolved at the rate of twenty revolutions a second or over two miles a minute, and the water is whirled out of frem without straining a fore.
